Old Age Pensions For Needy
Over 65 Among Provisions Of Bill

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The administration's greatest experiment in social reform—the social security program—was nearing reality today.

Approved by both houses of congress, the bill was expected to be signed by President Roosevelt early next week.

Administered by a social security board of three members, the vast federal program which is designed to provide old-age and health security for the working man will swing into almost immediate operation with the president's signature.

Program Provides

Contemplating the expenditure of $65,000,000 in federal appropriations during the first year, the program provides for the following:

1—Pensions for needy old persons over 65, with the government contributing $15 monthly providing the state contributes an equal sum.

2—Contributory old age pensions for industrial employees over 65, starting in January, 1942, and paying pensions of from $10 to $85 monthly, based on wages earned after January, 1936.

3—Unemployment insurance to be administered by the states, fed by a federal fund.

4—Pensions for the needy blind, on a 50-50 matching basis with the states, the government contributing up to $15 monthly.

5—Federal aid to dependent child.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Oiling operations are scheduled from Volant to Route 956, and on Route 956 to the Mercer county line during the period ending August 15, according to the State Highway Detour Bulletin. Oiling operations are also scheduled between Pulaski and the Mercer county line. No new detours are noted in the district.

Dear Pa News:

A reader of this column asked me if Housewrens are beneficial. Housewrens are one of the most useful birds, catching any insects which they eat themselves and feed to their young. Housewrens are great destroyers of the Rose Maple Moth. The caterpillar of this moth is very destructive to the Siver maple. I observed a wren the other day destroying five rosemoths in two minutes. If you wish to observe the Housewrens activities place a box in your garden now if you want them next spring. Hang the box six to ten feet from the ground and place the opening to the south. Be sure to give the inside of your wren box a coating of asphalt paint as this tends to keep away wasps that will build in the bird's box.

RAGING MUSKINGUM RIVER SWEEPS INTO ZANESVILLE

National guardsmen were called out for patrol duty as the swirling waters of the Muskingum river, drove more than 500 families at Zanesville, O., from their homes. Losses of more than $3,000,000 were estimated in several counties in which the Muskingum overflowed on its mad rampage. Four feet of water covered the west approach of the nationally-known "Y" bridge pictured above, shortly after this picture was taken. The bridge connects three main highways.

State Moves To Carry Out Plan On Work-Relief

Jones Believes All Employables Will Have Jobs
By November 1

OTHERS WILL BE ON LOCAL RELIEF

State Will Still Have Fund
Of $5,000,000 Monthly
It Is Expected

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 10.—The State Emergency Relief Board today was completing plans started some time ago to carry out its part in the New Deal relief program which has for its goal an end to direct relief on a state-wide basis by fall.

Spurred by the statement of Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, that federal direct relief grants to states will be virtually ended by November, the state board is concentrating on weeding out "unemployables" to be turned over to county poor boards for care.

All "employables"—persons able to work—are scheduled to be at work by November 1 under WPA projects. State WPA Director Edward N. Jones has said he believes he can get the state program, offering work to 350,000 jobless, going in full swing by November 1.

Distribute States $5,000,000

When both the employables and unemployables have been removed from the state's direct relief rolls, the state board will function only in the capacity of distributor of the $5,000,000 monthly state appropriation for jobless aid. It is expected this money will be allocated to counties which are unable to finance the direct cost of caring for their unemployables.

Reduction in the relief board's personnel already has begun. More than 75 per cent of the board's work division employees have been dismissed, most of them for transfer to WPA administrative jobs. No reduction has been made in the board's relief administrative staff of about 10,000 persons but this is expected to follow when WPA gets underway and reduces the number of persons on direct relief.

River Surveys Will Be Made

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10.—United States army engineers planned today to allocate the $135,000 allotted to the district by the federal government for additional river surveys and studies, according to Major W. D. Styer, chief of the Pittsburgh staff.

The money will be used, he said, to finance studies of the projected Allegheny river-French creek and the Beaver-Mahoning canal routes to Lake Erie, and the proposed improvements in the Kiskiminetas valley.

Young Man Will Be Used In Experiment In "Freezing Process"

(International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 10.—Stephen Simkhovitch, 35, who says he is a member of one of New York's pioneer families, will be used as a human guinea pig in an operation known as "freezing death" and "death with revivification." Ralph S. Willard, Hollywood research chemist, declared today.

Willard claims he has made extensive experiments with a freezing process whereby life supposedly is suspended for a period and later restored.

Last week Willard told reporters he resuscitated a small monkey frozen to death five days before.

Willard says he hopes that not only the tubercular bacilli but other germ life, including cancerous and other forms, may be annihilated. The chemist declared Simkhovitch, a writer, has released him of all blame should the human freezing subject die as a result of the experiment.

Tax Bill Will Reach Senate Floor Monday

Senate Committee Works

International News Service Staff

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Working day and night, the senate finance committee, which is drafting President Roosevelt's tax bill on that side of the capitol, today plunged into the controversial features of the measure in the apparently futile hope of finishing up tonight.

In spite of a strict ban of secrecy on proceedings, it was generally known today the committee has, for the present, ripped the inheritance tax schedules from the bill. The committee chairman Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, described all action thus far as "purely tentative."

Yet, there were among committee members, those who said the inheritance tax was gone finally, so far as the committee itself was concerned.

To Reach Senate Monday

Inevitably, when the bill reaches the senate floor, Harrison and other administration supporters will move to put the inheritance feature back into the bill. In all probability, they will be successful.

Harrison said emphatically the $250,000,000 bill would go to the senate floor on Monday afternoon. To accomplish this, a favorable report.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The Guffey-Snyder soft coal bill was suddenly catapulted into a major issue before congress and the nation today as a drive officially opened for passage before adjournment.

The measure, which sets up a "little NRA" for the soft coal industry, is slated to be reported out of the house ways and means committee on Monday. The house will vote on it next week.

With senate leaders promising consideration, there was a possibility that a stubborn fight over the bill may upset adjournment plans.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Relief-rollers throughout the nation who do not wish to work for a "security wage" today stood in full possession of their inalienable right to starve so far as the federal government is concerned.

The attempted strike of work-relief employees in New York City, and threatened similar strikes elsewhere, afforded President Roosevelt and Works Progress Administrator Hopkins an opportunity for a showdown which they accepted with alacrity.

It made no difference to the new dealers that organized labor leaders were attempting to foment the walk-outs. There was no sympathy in the Washington administration for the expressed fears of union men that work-relief wages would give employers an excuse to reduce prevailing wages in private industry.

"Can't Strike Against Relief."

"You can't strike against relief," was the burden of the ultimatum the President and Hopkins sent to those recalcitrant federal unemployment aid.

And, having delivered the ultimatum.

Liquor Control Board May Take New Measure To State Supreme Court

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 10.—The liquor control board today hunted a legal "short cut" which would slash through paralyzing delays in enforcement of the new beer act.

Its hands apparently tied from putting into effect any of the new licensing features of the stricter 1935 act, which superseded the original beverage law, the board's legal counsel and the department of justice hoped to speed the court machinery by going direct to the supreme court.

A new suit questioning constitutionality of the act appeared likely to be the procedure which would be adopted, a suit which could be brought in the state supreme court on a question of original jurisdiction as was done with party raiding and tax anticipation loan legislation. Week-end conferences were expected to attempt to find the exact procedure which can be followed.

Although the board would not issue a formal statement, it was admitted the injunctions already obtained in state and federal courts maintain, to all intents, the status quo of beer regulation under the 1933 law by tying the board's hands from putting into effect the new licensing features. Today had been set at the deadline for applying for the new permits.

Death Of Another Congressman Spurs Session End Demand

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Demands for immediate adjournment of congress grew more insistent today as death and illness invaded ranks of house members.

The gruelling eight-month session combined with Washington's blistering summer yesterday caused the fatal heart-attack suffered by Rep. Truax (D) of Ohio, according to physicians.

Truax, whose robust physique and powerful voice made him a colorful figure in debate, was stricken shortly after the house recessed over the week end. He collapsed near one of the house office buildings and died before medical aid could reach him.

Meanwhile, numerous other members are ill in hospitals or at home. More than a dozen are reported to be suffering heart ailments while an equal number are confined with other illnesses.

Many members are making frequent visits to the naval hospital for treatment while continuing their official duties. Others are daily callers at the office of Dr. George Calver, the capitol physician.

Wearied by the protracted legislative grind, approximately 25 members have packed their belongings and gone home determined not to return to the capitol until the next session convenes in January.

By formal resolution passed Friday night by the school board the teachers of the New Castle school system return to the Edmonds Act salary basis, when the salaries of 1930-31 as a base. Teachers who were in service during that school year will receive the scheduled salary plus one increment of $100 where they rate it. Teachers who were hired for the term of 1933-34, 1934-35 or are hired this year will receive the Edmonds Act minimum.

The bases are $1000 for an elementary teacher, $1300 for a junior high teacher, $1400 for a senior high teacher. Under the act eight annual increments of $100 are added.

While the teachers return to the Edmonds Act salary schedule, the group of senior high school teachers who have been receiving $200 over the Edmonds Act will also go back to their salary of $2400 at least for this year. Those who received $2200 when the premium of $200 over the Edmonds act was stopped by the LONDON, Aug. 10.—Coincident with cable reports from Addis Ababa that Ethiopia will have more than half a million armed men ready to take the field against Italy, the British government today crystallized the stand it will take next week in Paris at the Franco-British-Italian parley on the threatened war.

The British attitude was finally cemented at a conference between Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, Foreign Minister Sir Samuel Hoare, and Capt. Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, who will head the British delegation to Paris next Wednesday and Thursday.

Await Italy's Presentation

The government would not admit a specific plan had been decided upon as a final drive for peace, and made it clear that Italy first ought to present her case. Also, despite previous assertions from Rome that Italy would not be satisfied merely with economic concessions in East Africa, Britain feels that if Italy would limit her demands to this field they would be received with a large measure of satisfaction in Ethiopia.

FRENCH STEAMERS RESUME SAILINGS

(International News Service)
PARIS, Aug. 10.—Firm and prompt action by Premier Pierre Laval, France's dictator until parliament reassembles in October, restored order today to riot-battered Toulon, Brest and other ports.

Troops, mobile guards and gendarmes were, however, ordered to maintain their positions, in the fear that trouble might possibly break out again when seamen, not fully satisfied with Laval's promise of partial wage readjustments, gather after work this evening.

Laval won the cooperation of union leaders in inducing the men to go back to work without further disorders. He pledged, according to workers' representatives, that overtime bonuses would be given to the workers to compensate for the ten per cent wage cuts ordered for all government employees in the economy drive to prevent inflation.

Summoning the prefects of all the French departments, in an unprecedented action, Laval told them that the "fate of the country is at stake". Various prefects spoke, reporting on the situation in their districts.

Lightner Announces For Commissioner

Former State Highway Superintendent A Candidate On Republican Ticket

H. W. LIGHTNER

H. W. "Pete" Lightner, of the Second Ward, New Castle, former superintendent of the state highway in Lawrence county, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for county commissioner. His statement follows:

"The business of being a county commissioner requires first one who is an executive and secondly one who has been responsible for the disbursement of considerable money. Both of these requirements I believe I possess.

"For ten years I was the superintendent of highways for the state in this county. As superintendent I directed the building of many miles of road in the county, the maintenance of all state roads, and the expenditure of much of your money which was paid in as taxes. The fact that the Lawrence County highway was never questioned as to a time when methods in some counties were under investigation seems to me to indicate the fact that the local department was operated honestly and efficiently.

"I believe my service as a highway executive would fit into the duties of a county commissioner. The experience of building highways, of operating within the confines of a budget, and the handling of a force as large as we had, at times rising to 900 employees, is something I offer to the Republican voters for their consideration on September 17. ## BAR VIRGINIA GUARD UNITS

Gretna for a two-week training period in connection with a mass defense of the eastern seaboard.

Dr. MacBride-Dexter issued her ruling upon her return from a conference in Baltimore with guard officials and health authorities. She said Virginia health authorities recognized the existence of an epidemic in that state and that they had told her 50 per cent of the existing cases of infantile paralysis in Virginia had developed since August 1.

For Protection.

In announcing her decision, the secretary made public a telegram she sent to Dr. I. C. Riggan, Virginia state health director. It read:

"For the protection of the people of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania I prohibit entrance of Virginia troops into Pennsylvania for maneuvers at Mt. Gretna due to the epidemic of infantile paralysis in Virginia."

Dr. MacBride-Dexter said she had informed Dr. Riggan of this decision verbally at the Baltimore conference.

The state's ruling marks the second time a scheduled mass mobilization has been disrupted because of the Virginia epidemic. President Roosevelt earlier this week cancelled the Boy Scout jamboree which was to have been held in Washington.

damage to the junior high school. Sills have been riddled, wooden supports eaten through, doors have fallen off the hinges due to the damage and in the last six months the superintendent of buildings and grounds expected to see the termites attempt to carry the building off.

They are a growing danger to wooden structures in this district. They do their work entirely unseen, coming from the ground up through wooden supports and eating the inside of the posts or sills. They have been known to eat clear out to the varnish on floors and they have already attacked the entrance to the school. Where they have to go across concrete or steel they build tunnels for the worker termites to use and these tunnels are used to go from the ground up through the wood and back again.

They must have moisture every so often and the plan of the Termitox Company is to poison the wood through which they would pass.

The company will inspect the premises for five years and give a guarantee bond for faithful performance.

The only other bid presented for the treatment of the building was that of the S. W. Means Lumber Company at a price of $4,469.

Good health is an essential element of human welfare, but over and above a certain low point good health does not necessarily or even normally increase with increases of private income or wealth.

There he witnessed a special practice and held a discussion with the officers, which no official dared to conjecture.

Then he returned to shore, boarded his seaplane, and hoped off again. All that was said officially of the visit was that it was connected with "special experiments," about which deep secrecy prevailed.

BOARD DECIDES ON SALARY RATE

board will not receive any increment. This feature of the salary schedule provoked a long discussion.

Green Reports

Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent, presented a report of his teachers who would receive the increment and explained that they had been receiving 85 per cent of the Edmonds Act salaries in the past two years. He suggested that it was not entirely fair to those teachers hired since 1932-33 that they should not receive one increment of $100, but said that Dr. Quackenbush, of the state department had said that the board was not legally liable to add it this year to those teachers' salaries.

"It's a ruling of the department," said Duff, "and I think we should abide by it."

Said Woolcock, "What about the teachers in the Senior High school who have been receiving $2200. Do they get an increment to bring them up to the teachers who have been getting $2400?"

"Yes," replied Dr. Green.

Bauman—"What do you want to do, keep paying senior high school teachers $2400 per year?"

Duff—"I'm in favor of it."

Bauman—"I'm against paying them more than the Edmonds Act."

To this statement Thomas and McIlvenny agreed that they too were opposed to paying more than the schedule salary.

Hyde—"I think we passed a rule on this board stopping those increases to senior high teachers some years ago."

Dr. Green then explained that he did not mean that those who were now getting $2200 were to get increments but that those who get the $2400 were to still get it.

McIlvenny—"We ought to go further and put them all on the Edmonds Act basis. I am against paying one teacher $2400 and another $2200 for the same work."

Duff—"It would be unfair also to cut those teachers who have been receiving the $2400 back to $2200. Some of the best teachers we have are getting it."

Woolcock—"What made them any better than the others? They got the increased salary merely because of the fact that they had the years of service and not because of any special ability."

Hyde—"The question is whether or not they are satisfied with the Edmonds Act. Its the teachers own act. They went to Harrisburg and had it passed and they ought to stand by it."

Duff—"We are talking around in a circle. This can't be changed this year any way."

Woolcock—"It is unfair to pay some $2400 and some $2200. I am satisfied to pay all of them who have the service $2400, but I am not satisfied to have two classes."

Hyde—"They were given the increase of $200 at a time when other cities were raising the system for teachers. It was not for merit but merely to get them to stay in the system. That condition does not exist now."

"The sum total of the discussion on this phase of the question was nothing. The teachers who got $2400 in 1932-33 in the senior high school will still get it and the ones who got $2200 will not get any additional."

TAXING OF INHERITANCES

THERE are many people in America today, including the President of the United States and some of the "New Dealers," who seem to think that the placing of a heavy tax on inheritances will not only distribute the wealth of the country but will produce greater revenues for the federal government.

Those, however, who support such a theory of taxation fail to realize that when all the wealth—productive as well as non-productive—is finally divided up among the politicians and for governmental expenditures, that much capital will not be available for industry to expand and provide employment for those now idle.

The case of Ford's millions or billions has been cited as an example of this. If Edsel Ford, the only son of Henry Ford, should inherit the entire fortune of his father, the government would take practically 80 per cent of it under the tax program proposed. It would be necessary for this heir to raise sufficient money to pay this tax. This might necessitate his selling the entire Ford plant. This great business has provided not only work for hundreds of thousands of people throughout the country, but has also made possible cheap transportation for the average man.

What advantage this would be to the country, even though the government should obtain these millions of dollars, is difficult for everyone to understand.

Even if this and other large estates were distributed among all the people of the United States it would be only a few dollars for each and if turned over to the treasury would pay only a small fraction of the interest.

A well known publication gave another illustration of a property valued at millions of dollars which happens to be owned by one or two individuals instead of thousands of stockholders.

Under the proposed plan of inheritance taxation, the death of either of these individuals would mean taxes so heavy that the business would have to be sold to raise the cash to pay them. That would be the end of what is a great individual achievement.

One should not forget that if such a tax had been in effect when this business was started twenty-five years ago it would never have been built up. Thousands of people now working in this plant would never have been employed.

TIN CANS SPOIL NO FOOD!

Buying food for thirty million American homes is big business, and it is essentially a woman's job. "Is it dangerous to leave food in an open can?" they asked anxiously and were relieved to learn that there is nothing in the modern can that causes "ptomaine poisoning," makes food spoil any more quickly than it would normally in an open glass, or earthenware, or enamel container. Surprising how hydra-headed is this hoary, old misconception.

Tin never imparts any flavor to food and the slight discoloration left within the can by some sulphur-content foods is as harmless as the stain a cooked egg leaves on a silver spoon.—Review of Reviews and World's Work.

SILVER DOLLAR PAYROLL

The Standard Oil Company of Ohio plans to meet an August payroll with 110,000 silver dollars. It has made special arrangements with the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland to deliver the enormous load of coins. The dollars will weigh 7,777 pounds. If they were stacked in one pile, it would be 750 feet high—taller than most of Ohio's skyscrapers.

The purpose of this strange plan, it is said, is to make a check, if possible, on what happens to money in industrial pay rolls. Stores have been asked to report the numbers of dollars they receive.

Whether this be a publicity stunt or a piece of serious sociological research, it is worth watching. An offhand guess, made in advance of the big silver payment, is that a lot of those dollars will get back into the banks at once. Some may go into the old sock.

G. A. R. STAMP

A bill to authorize the issue of a stamp commemorating the seventieth anniversary of the organization of the Grand Army of the Republic has been introduced by Representative Dobbins of Illinois well in advance of the day which he seeks to mark.

Not until April 6 next year will the G. A. R. observe its seventieth birthday. It was on that day in 1866 that the first post of the Union Veterans' organization was established at Decatur, Illinois. Decatur is designed in the bill as a first point of sale, but Springfield and Petersburg, in Illinois, are included too.

The establishment of the Decatur post brought to realization the efforts of a chaplain and a surgeon of the Fourteenth Illinois Infantry, who had begun their attempt to organize the Union veterans more than a year earlier. The first post was a particularly valuable one because it included all the composers on the Decatur Tribune and thus 400 copies of the ritual could be printed in absolute secrecy.

If this commemorative issue is authorized, the designer of the stamp could find no more appropriate decoration for it than the bronze button that every G. A. R. member wore in his coat lapel. It was once a familiar and respected sight; it is still respected and perhaps all the more highly because so rarely seen.

It took the G. A. R. a quarter of a century to reach its greatest strength. In 1890 it had a membership of 409,000; it was probably no mere coincidence that the peak of membership coincided with the year in which the Civil War pension roll was doubled by the act of 1890. The G. A. R. men of 1890 were considerably older on the average than World War veterans are today.

The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars hence may look ahead confidently for several years yet to a normal increase in membership, says the New York Sun. The middle years put a special premium on youthful memories for many a man.

What has become of the new heavyweight champion of the United States and who is he?

Mr. Ford says what is done in Washington doesn't matter. But then, there's always a possibility that it might.

I . . . I . . . I

I never can work a puzzle. and sometimes I suspect that I'm not quite bright.

I get bored easily, but my bump of curiosity is SO BIG!

I can always forget whatever I don't want to remember.

I like praise but it embarrasses me and makes me feel like a hypocrite; and I don't like to feel like a hypocrite.

I trust first impressions of people, though I know I shouldn't.

I have no sense of humor except in retrospect.

And for crushing repartee, I have no talent. . . . That bright remark I should have made doesn't arrive until the other fellow is just around the corner.

I never did have any enthusiasm for going down, down, down into a mine.

If you like me, then I'll like you. No matter what other people may say about you, I'll always insist that you're a very fine fellow.

For me one of the saddest sights is a nice old man whose sons have gone wrong, a nice old man who still clings pathetically to his faith in their goodness.

Apples are crisp and sweet, orange juice is fine, but Bing cherries are the best of all.

I think the faith of the farmer in the spring of the year comes very close to religion.

I feel humiliated when a baby doesn't like me.

I received a pamphlet the other day, that "proved" salt is a poison and the curse of the human diet. . . . And I was almost convinced. . . . But I met a man the very next day who hadn't used salt for 10 years and he didn't look nearly as strong to me as he had 10 years before. . . . So I'm taking that pamphlet with a grain of salt and waiting for more proof.

SUMMER COTTAGE CREATURES

What strange acquaintances I make Out at the cottage by the lake.

So many curious things I see, A different world it seems to be.

The rooms, the walls, the fields are rife With most fantastic forms of life:

Moth millers of a mighty size, Mysterious double-jointed flies;

Spiders and wasps and things that crawl Through window space and crannied wall;

Mosquitoes, gnats and stinging mites Buzz round the lamps on summer nights,

Serving with ghastly frightfulness Some purpose which I cannot guess.

Countless their number and their kind, And most ingeniously designed;

Strange shapes which seem to live and die Merely to keep man wondering why.

PAST INDISCRETIONS REMAIN CONSTANT SPECTRES

Often persons are reluctant about taking a positive stand on matters upon which they should declare themselves, being fearful of the antagonism they might engender.

Those who do not agree with their expressed principles might delve into past life for unfavorable data.

If you are one of those who wishes to keep the past hidden, you will find it just as well not to create unnecessary antagonism.

It is dreadful to live in constant fear of something unsavory coming to the surface.

It were better to let the worst be known rather than lead such existence.

How unsatisfactory it is, day in and day out, to expect past deeds to emerge when least desired!

So far, in your life, you may have done things a bit disgraceful but not anything that might affect your reputation seriously.

But you are tempted sorely to do wrong and keep it secret.

Don't do it—don't be foolish. If you have controlled yourself so far, don't fall now, for regrets can hang over a long, long time.

One fellow on government relief, it is reported, complained the other day that he doesn't get enough to be able to buy high test gasoline and that everybody goes around him on the road.

DOG AIDS FARMER

If there were a few more dogs like a certain one in Massachusetts and a few more commissioners like those who passed judgement on this particular canine's chewing activities, there wouldn't be nearly so many farmers in financial difficulties. The owner of the dog was hailed before the commissioners because said dog did maliciously, feloniously, etc., chew the tail from one farmer's cow.

The commissioners decided that the "switcher" was worth $50. Does any one happen to know of a farmer right now who would not rather have $50 than a cow let alone have the $50 and also the cow minus a minor accessory like the tail which is always getting into the milk pails anyway?

According to the Cullman, Alabama, Tribune, bathing is an ancient custom in the "Deep South."

The paper reports that in Huntsville what probably is one of the first bath-tubs to be built in America was discovered by workers raising an old residence to make way for the new postoffice. According to public records the tub, hewn out of limestone rock, was built in 1820, when John Erwin built the house. The tub measures five feet long, 19½ inches wide and one foot deep.

But had the old timer exhibited some of his cabinet work he might have scored high for he is a real craftsman."

New Deal Money Boomerang.
Fights Back In Roundabout Way.
Banks Deposits Mounting.

Central Press
New York Bureau
235 East 45th street

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Some of the New Deal money is coming back to fight the New Deal. That is the interpretation financial wisecracks place on this:

AAA benefits have permitted persons in the farm regions to buy automobiles. General Motors has profited. General Motors has declared an extra dividend. The du Ponts are the heaviest stockholders in General Motors. The du Ponts, therefore, are the greatest beneficiaries of increased General Motors' earnings. And the du Ponts are the chief backers of the American Liberty league, one of the most bitter antagonists of President Roosevelt and his New Deal.

ANTI-F. D. R. STRATEGY
Letters are being received by leading industrialists from a group of anti-Roosevelt strategists. The letters say that it would be wise to organize conservative Democrats and have them select a candidate for president in opposition to President Roosevelt. This plan, the letter says, has the advantage of splitting the Democratic vote, which still is believed to be greater than the Republican vote, nationally.

"AN ILL WIND . . ."
The fish people are smiling.

Increasing meat prices and spreading of boycotts against meat purchases have increased fish business.

A few years ago, when meat was low in price, the fish business scraped the bottom in earnings.

Some meat counters in chain stores now are largely fish counters.

DEMOCRATIC FEAR
There are rumors that President Roosevelt plans to hold a party of large employers and labor leaders in order to try to arrive at an agreement to stabilize wages and working conditions.

An economic breakdown prior to the election would be disastrous to the president.

Democrats fear some large employers may cut wages in an endeavor to swing the election to the Republicans. Democrats say they have had to contend with that for years.

Employers, on the other hand, while largely opposed to President Roosevelt's policies, say that high wages are making high costs. Work has been going around freely that NRA wages would be dropped when congress adjourned.

The only bill that would prevent such action, to a degree, is the one that would impose NRA conditions on government contractors or anybody selling anything to the government. That is being fought, and may die.

WHERE TO INVEST
Bank credits and sums on deposit mount higher and higher. But capital will not move, in spite of the fact that the government is taking away, in one manner or another, earning power for static money.

It is a story told and re-told in history: Strighted capital goes into hiding.

Large sums undoubtedly have been made by persons on securities and real estate in the past two years, but the bulk of capital has gone into storm cellars.

A FIGHTER FOR INVESTORS
Former Governor Clyde M. Reed of Kansas, publisher of the Parsons, Kas. Sun, who was represented as appearing for utility companies, is decidedly not a representative of the utility corporations. He isn't even a lawyer. But he did appear as a representative of utility investors before congressional committees on the utility holding company bill—and that is how the confusion arose.

As Mr. Reed explains it: "In my appearance before the committee of both houses of congress, I was very careful to state my background; for whom I appeared; and my opinions as to the legislation based upon a long experience with the question. To begin with, I am not a lawyer. I am a newspaper publisher, but happened to serve on the Kansas regulatory commission and drifted into the picture before the Interstate Commerce commission and state commissions, over a period of years.

"He will speak on 'Understanding Youth' and answer the following questions this coming Sunday evening, August 11, at 8 p. m. 'Was Jesus a Socialist?' The public is invited to hand to the pastor, questions or mail them to him. It is not necessary to sign your name.

Girl Scouts Enter Camp On Sunday

Big Group Will Arrive In A Body At Camp Phillips To Remain For Two Weeks

Sunday will be a busy day at Camp John M. Phillips when the Girl Scouts of the city arrive in a body. Any time after 1 o'clock it is permissible for them to come. Sunday was chosen by the girls as the best day to come and go, as it is more convenient for their fathers to bring them then. The parents are urged to send plenty of blankets with their girls, as the nights are cold. There are some mattresses but not enough for the whole camp, so extra comforts should be brought to be used in their place.

Sundays are the only visitors' days and there will be some special programs for the parents on those days. The handy men, Dick Herman and Dick Pugh, have been busy since Thursday putting up tents, beds and getting the supplies there.

The cooks are the same as last year—Mrs. Kathryn Klee and Mrs. Stevens—and we know the girls will be glad to see them back.

The camp this year for the first time to come and go, as it is more convenient for their fathers to bring them then. The parents are urged to send plenty of blankets with their girls, as the nights are cold. There are some mattresses but not enough for the whole camp, so extra comforts should be brought to be used in their place.

The following girls will go out on Sunday: Jean Allen, Marjorie Willa Allen, Barbara Hamill, Betty Jean Kemp, Betty Jane Marshall, Helen Metz, Dorothy Wallace, Ruth Markley, Marjorie Allen, Shirley Boyd, Audrey Bridenbaugh, Dawn Cary, Jeanne Metz, Rita Metz, Helen Miller, Ermina Pick, Mary Phillips, Dorothy Robins, Elizabeth Robins, Sara Wilson, Betty Bachman, Edna Conner, Marian Connor, Jean Copeland, Leah Davis, Peggy England and Louise Owen.

Miss Elvira Cartwright will be the nurse and will weigh the girls into camp and at the end of each week. For those driving out, the following directions are given: Turn left at Princeton, instead of going all the way to Rose Point as a bridge was washed out on the road from Rose Point.

John Dukes has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against Angeline Ziolkowski to collect a balance of $516.66 alleged to be due for wages. Dukes was employed at $50 per month, room and board, in Mrs. Ziolkowski's restaurant on Long avenue, and he claims that the amount asked is due for his services. The defendant is given fifteen days in which to file an answer to the claim.

Testimony to determine the amount of damages to be allowed James Mason of the West Pittsburgh road, was taken before viewers at the court house yesterday. Mason has a gas station on the road which was raised from two to three feet in front of the station. It is also claimed that the gas pumps are on or near the right of way and must be moved. If moved 25 feet from the center of the new concrete road, it would necessitate the moving of a brick office building, and the filling of a depression. There was considerable difference of opinion as to the amount of damages sustained, and the viewers reserved their report.

County Health officer Frank Stevens has returned from Mt. Alto tuberculosis and infantile paralysis sanitarium, where he went for two weeks instruction in his duties by the state health department. Several instructors were present. Mr. Stevens reports that the Mt. Alto sanitarium is a wonderful institution. There are at present 1200 tubercular patients and 300 infantile paralysis. Among the former are six from Lawrence county.

Feeding and caring for the 1500 patients is quite a job. On last Sunday 700 chickens were killed and 25 bushels of potatoes were pared. The institution has its own bakery and 375 loaves of bread are necessary daily. The sanitarium also has its own refrigerating plant where meats are kept.

On Court House Hill

Court room No. 1 is being overhauled in preparation for the September term of court. Paper cleaners have been going over the walls and ceiling, but even when cleaned the ceiling shows where it was patched following damage done when some of the slate blew off during a rain. However the paper used matched the old paper and it does not look so bad.

Prothonotary R. M. Campbell is being commended on the stand he has taken in refusing marriage licenses to persons on relief. His attitude is no reflection on the parties applying, but he feels that the prospects of establishing a home when a man is out of work are not very bright. Records of recent divorce courts show that inability of the husband to earn a livelihood is responsible for the wrecking of many homes.

County commissioners report that the West Pittsburgh road, which has been under construction from the south end of the former concrete to West Pittsburgh, will soon be thrown open for public travel. At present there are barricades at each end of the road, but motorists who wish to assume the risk are driving around them and over the road. There are piles of dirt to be avoided but the careful driver has no difficulty. It is likely that all obstructions will be removed by next week. There are several places along the road where it will be necessary to erect guard rails. The West Pittsburgh road is now improved from Moravia street to the north end of West Pittsburgh. It is necessary to go over some dirt or ashed road in order to go over to the new Castle-Beaver road, and some arrangements should be made to have this section improved, either with concrete or a Pinchot road.

West Siders Have Big Program On Friday Evening

Fifteen Hundred Hear Program At West Side Fire Station

One of New Castle's biggest and most elaborate out-door events was staged last night under gaily colored lights strung about the lawn of the Sixth Ward fire house, on Smithfield street. The sponsor was the Sixth Ward Fireman's Athletic association.

An audience of approximately 1500 persons heard the program which was arranged by Hugh D. Horton, master of ceremonies for the evening.

The Gritty Brothers were then heard from with a selection of songs, after which the Riggs brothers hill billy band played, and in conjunction with this accompaniment Miss Jennette Gromile was featured in a song and dance act.

J. B. Zeigler, president and manager of the firemen's ball team introduced each and every member of the team to those present. Following this, and to climax the evening's program, the drawing was held.

The committee in charge of the festivities included Hugh D. Horton, chairman and his assistants: Thomas McCormick, Buck Weaver, Clyde Jackson, Arthur Bloomer and Jack Lynn.

Husbands And Wives Swap In Trip To Reno

Two California School Teachers Engage Wives After Women Go To Reno

(International News Service)
RENO, Nev., Aug. 10.—The wives of two California school teachers, and pretty Ann Strider Clabby and pretty Maurine E. Carlson, came to Reno together and established a joint residence while waiting to divorce their mates.

Today the two had obtained their respective divorces, swapped husbands and were on new honeymoon trips.

Immediately after the divorces were granted, Mrs. Carlson married James Clabby, English teacher, and Mrs. Clabby married Gordon T. Carlson, physical director and athletic coach.

While both men were instructors at the Peradale high school, near Eureka, Cal., they became close friends. Their wives also formed a close friendship.

A month ago both teachers resigned, left California and came to Reno where the wife swapping took place.

AUTO IS LOOTED

Method Of Paying School Teachers Is Not To Be Changed

Proposal To Pay In Twelve Installments Is Not Adopted By Board

No change will be made in the method of paying the school teachers of New Castle. They will receive their checks in nine months and the proposal to pay them in 12 installments instead of nine will not be carried through. This was the action of the school board Friday night at the regular board meeting in the administrative building.

Speaking for a special committee that had investigated the proposal, Director Roy W. Hazen said: "We have gone into this matter thoroughly and find a number of disadvantages in it. First it would disarrange the financial setup of the board in that the fiscal year starts July 1 and for the first year two-twelfths of the salary list would have to be carried over. The budget for the coming year shows a deficit of $114,000 but part of this would not appear if the new plan were carried into effect. Thus if we went to the state department for help we might have difficulty convincing them of the real deficit. The public reaction against the teachers getting three pay checks during the summer when they were not working might not be good. Finally we have an opinion from Solicitor William J. Moffatt in which he says that it is clearly illegal to pay the teachers any other way than in monthly or semi-monthly installments during the nine months of the teaching year."

Dr. Green buttressed the report of Mr. Hazen by saying that the majority of the teachers were against the plan and the whole matter has been dropped.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10.—If you're willing to lose a few hours of sleep, you can have a front seat at a free show of celestial fireworks.

The best time is the hour before dawn, according to Daniel, when the heavens will be streaked with shooting stars which will continue to light up the sky for two days.

They're not exactly shooting stars, however, Daniel explained, but are known as perseids, tiny particles that form the debris of the disintegrated Tuttle's comet. When these tiny bits enter earth's atmosphere, they are heated to incandescence by the friction.

"The rate is like a bullet going through a flock of bees at 90 miles a second," Daniel explained. "Most of the meteorites weigh much less than an ounce and are burned before they ever reach the earth."

"The meteoric shower is known as the perseids, because the streaking particles appear to originate from the constellation of perseus. The constellation is low in the northeast."

State, county and cities today endeavored to unravel two mysterious cases, one in County Line road, near Cascade Street, and another on a dirt road leading from County Line road to the Frew Mill road.

Thursday morning a section of the road leading from County Line road to the Frew Mill road was found covered with blood. No sign of an animal having been killed was discovered. Deputy Sheriff Ben Hartland investigated the case.

At six a. m. today a section of the County Line road was found deeply saturated with blood. The prints of a woman's heel was found close to the section covered with blood.

An auto had driven close to the bank and on either side of the road where the bloody section was found are deep quarries filled with water. No footprints of a man's shoe could be found.

Some hair was found on a small bush which grew in the blood covered dirt. It was found by Chief of Police J. F. Haven. Detective Willis McMullen took a sample of the bloody dirt which may be analyzed to find if the blood is from a human or animal. The hair likewise will be examined.

State Trooper Paul Longo and Deputy Sheriff Ben Hartland also investigated the strange occurrences in that section during the past three days as the result of telephone call from Leigh Portland Cement company attaches who believed that foul play may have occurred.

Speculation that a dog might have been killed resulted in the discovery that there was no dead dog nearby and there was only one big blood spot in each road.

Authorities would not voice the opinion that any crime had been committed and on the other hand are mystified by not having found any dead animals or signs of an auto accident at the two places.

Unions Defeat Capitols 2-1

Unions Remain In New Castle Soft Ball League Pennant Race By Victory

BABS WINS HIS SEVENTH VICTORY

Unions again defeated the Capitols in the New Castle Soft Ball league, the latest victory coming last night at the B. & O. field with about 1,000 fans looking on. Frank Babs on the hill for the Unions got credit for his seventh league victory of the year. It was the eleventh victory for the Unions.

It was the third time that the Unions have blasted the hopes of the "Caps." The game was one of the best of the year and was well handled by the umpires Brooks and Evans. Both Rod Pezzone and Babs allowed five hits apiece. Babs fanned eight men and Pezzone one. Texie Richards scored the first Union run in the seventh on a hit by Summers. In the eighth, the single by S. Cople coupled with a wild pitch by Pezzone put Cople on third and he scored on a fielders choice by Merando. The Caps scored in the first inning and could not dent the plate thereafter.

Nick Blondi played a fine game at first base and in addition batted out two doubles. Tex Richards got his 42nd hit of the year. "Gabby" DeCaprio hit a double for the Caps. S. Bullano scored the only Capitolo run. After a wobbly first inning, Babs settled down and pitched a swell game. The Unions will not play Sunday afternoon at B. & O. field it was announced, but will play the Croton team Monday in the City League.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Capitols.....100 000-1 5 Unions.....000 011-2 5 Batteries—Capitols: R. Pezzone and Bullano; Unions: Babs and Richards. Umpires—Brooks and Evans.

Spends Modest Sum Of $7,200 For Sports Sedan For His Mother

(International News Service) DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 10.—Motorists will do well to recall that discretion is the better part of valor before engaging in arguments with the dusky driver of a black, 12-cylinder sports sedan bearing Michigan license U-46500.

Joe Louis, the Detroit Negro heavyweight, paid out $7,200 of his winnings in the Kingfish Levinsky fight for the automobile. It has fitted ash trays, lighters, a radio, a rear seat compartment that opens into a small table and vanity cases in the side walls.

"Mother will use the car most of the time," Joe explained. "Of course, I'll drive it but I don't have time to get around much."

Joe also has another car, a modest, 1935 sedan in the $1,500 price class.

Radiators Trim Tolan Team, 3-1

Bishara Outpitches Rogers To Take League Victory, Fans 14

National Radiators maintained their terrific pace in the New Castle Soft Ball league last night at the Spencer Field by taking the measure of the Tolan A. C. colored team 3 to 1 with Norman "Cannonball" Bishara outpitching Rogers, granting only four hits.

Roberts second man up for the Tolans in the first inning pasted one of Bishara's fast slants out of the ball park for the only Tolan run of the game, and incidentally the only run of either team until the first of the seventh when the Rads went ahead with a two run attack and then made one more in the eighth.

Turco had a three-bagger for the Rads and scored one of the runs Bishara whiffed 14 of the Tolans who faced him. Rogers pitched a great game for the Tolans and only gave the Rads six hits. He fanned four. Wilson and Testa handled a nice game as umpires.

R. W. Bolinberger, business manager of the Radiators asks that all players report in full uniform Monday night for the Davis game at the Rad Field as pictures of the team will be taken at that time.

Wanda peered at the heavens through a telescope while Bing swept field glasses up and down Broadway.

BINGHAM CAREW strode through the reception room of Marvelous Pictures, Inc. "Got a date with the kingpin," he said smiling generously as he passed the telephone operator.

"You got it," she said reaching for his coat, "leave and missing."

Bing stared straight for the door marked "RESIDENT," knocked, and entered immediately.

"Sorry I'm a little late," he said drawing up a chair and sitting down.

The man behind the desk, his eyes goggled, his numerically deficient red hair bunched in tufts over each ear, pulled at his nose and stared quizzically at his visitor.

"I have no recollection—"

"Must have slipped your mind, Mr. Ludlam. I'm Prima Production Promoters from Chicago."

"I'm very busy today," Mr. Ludlam pulled a watch from a pocket and slipped it back without looking at it. "Come in tomorrow better."

"Glad to. I've an appointment with Goodman Productions in thirty minutes, anyway."

"Hah!" Mr. Ludlam scowled. "Those up-stairs!"

"Remember their picture, The Lady from Hecor's? We put a hundred chorus girls on Broadway the opening night all wearing the star's costume. They went into the restaurants, cafés, and clubs wearing a short cape with the title of the picture printed on it."

"How could I forget that night," Mr. Ludlam sighed. "We opened with Louisville Lady the same day and account of your stunt nobody came to our show practically." He reached for a carved ebony box. "Have a smoke."

"You've got The Hell Cat coming out of production soon, Mr. Ludlam. I'll round up a couple of thousand stray cats, tie signs on them, and dump them in the middle of Broadway an hour before the show opens. A great idea!" Bingham ended enthusiastically.

Mr. Ludlam lifted his cigar from his lips, said "Terrible!" and put it back again.

"A great idea," Bingham repeated but not so enthusiastically.

"We got Angel Child opening next week. And what troubles I got with that new star, Hannah Glaum. She's so smooth and sweet on the outside but inside she's a devil."

Bingham jumped up. "We'll have the public mob the theatre opening night, Mr. Ludlam. Just leave everything to me."

"Wait a minute, mister. I ain't asked you to handle this yet."

Bingham looked very much surprised. "Why," he said, "I thought that was all arranged."

"How much?" Mr. Ludlam snapped.

"It will be the most effective publicity you ever had. We'll put over the picture and we'll make the star."

"How much?"

"Just dew in the old oaken bucket, Mr. Ludlam."

"To me it's worth twenty-five hundred. I wouldn't spend a cent more."

Bingham started for the door. "Good day, Mr. Ludlam. I'm late for that Goodman appointment."

"Perhaps it's worth five thousand," Mr. Ludlam agreed reluctantly, "if you pack 'em in tight."

"Like olives in a jar," Bing promised. "And by the way, with new clients we usually specify a thousand advance for expenses."

"Is that customary?"

"Quite."

"Well, this time you'll have to make it uncustomary. Five thousand the day after the show opens. Good day."

"But the expenses will be very heavy."

"Good bye, Mr. Carew."

THE LOBBY of the building was filled with people waiting for a shower to blow over. Bingham concentrated his gaze on a tight brown curl hugging the diminutive ear of a girl standing beside him. From a glimpse of the lift of her lips he guessed that she had a grand smile.

"Pardon me," he said. "If you are going up Broadway, I'd be glad to drop you off anywhere."

Yes, he was right about her smile.

"Shall I call you Mr. X?"

"Carew is the label—Bingham Carew. I've been at that entrance every night for a month," he said too seriously, "waiting for it to rain so I could offer you a lift."

"That's odd. I've never been there before."

"It's Fate."

"Mr. Bingham Fate." She frankly studied his face. He was undoubtedly good looking but she couldn't decide why. The nose? Straight but sort of largish, she thought. The mouth a trifle too generous perhaps. The eyes a twinkling dark blue. It must be the general ensemble—

"I'm Prima Production Promoters," Bingham said without prompting. "Chicago."

"I'm simply Wanda Mallory — not incorporated."

"I've just recently moved my office to New York."

"Too much business in Chicago?"

"Well, you see all the big stuff is here. In fact I just got a contract from Marvelous Pictures to handle the opening show publicity for their new picture Angel Child."

She looked very much interested. Wide clear brown eyes pinning their unflinching gaze on him.

"Do go on," she said. "What are you going to do about it?"

"Why—uh," Bingham confessed, "I don't know."

"Perhaps a broiled mutton chop would inspire you? Here is my stop. If you won't mind waiting until I cook dinner—"

"Accepted with alacrity!" Bing said, helping her out of the cab. "Oh, but I can't," he realized, glancing at the cabman. "My aunt Elsa—back in Chi, you know—is unwell and I'm expecting word of her."

"I'm sorry."

"But might—could I drop in after dinner?" Yes, she said he might if he could. She scribbled her address on one of his cards and disappeared into a store.

"You know," Bing said casually to the taxi driver as they continued up Broadway, "you look like a real sport. What horse did you play today?"

"Sorry, sir; but I never gamble."

"Oh."

The taximeter ticked on—and up.

"Wouldn't even match coins, I suppose," Bing wondered, "to see whether I pay you double or nothing?"

"Oh, no, sir."

"I would pick the only taxi driver in New York who doesn't gamble," Bing muttered.

"Well," he said, "you'd better let me off here."

On the curb Bing thrust a hand deep into a trouser pocket and his face was suddenly tragic.

"My wallet!" he cried.

"The fare is one-ninety, sir."

"Man! I've been robbed!"

"If you are a little short," the driver said imperturbably, "you needn't bother about the tip."

Bing regained his composure. "Sorry, old chap," he said airily. "Here's my card. Just drop in at my office tomorrow and the cashier will pay you."

Bing started to walk away but found he couldn't leave the cabman. "One-ninety," that stoic repeated. "Or else!"

When Bingham finally was able to depart he was minus his watch. Seventeen jewels. A very good watch, he reflected sadly as he walked toward the Drive.

The maid had left his mail on the library desk. Bing hastily opened a familiarly post-marked envelope. The letter was from his aunt Elsa and there was an enclosure. But, she wrote, it was the last time. The future was definitely up to him. He needn't trouble to write her again until—

MR. LUDLAM was so excited that the long white ash on his cigar broke and filtered over his vest. "But Goodman Productions have an opening that night!" he shouted. "And if those cheap no-goods put it over me like they did last time I'll not for the consequences be responsible!"

"Just the same," Bingham insisted, "we've got to open with Angel Child next Thursday night."

"Never!" Mr. Ludlam roared. "Nobody is going to fool Adolphus Ludlam twice in the same place!"

"But if you'd only listen!" Bingham spread a newspaper rotogravure on the desk and pointed. "Professor Plotkin of Vienna is going to make a test flight into the stratosphere Thursday."

"So let him fall and break his neck on the stratosphere," Mr. Ludlam grumbled. "I got too many troubles already with Hannah Glaum. Last week she fell in love with a Bulgarian waiter and married him. And while I'm trying to get the marriage annulled she elopes with an Irish count and commits bigamy."

"But about this Professor Plotkin."

"All right. I suppose I got to take your troubles too."

"He's going up in his balloon next Thursday morning. Now I've got a balloon over in Jersey; and I'm having it fixed up to look just like Plotkin's apparatus, with a spherical gondola and all. When we get done you won't be able to tell them apart."

"So?"

"Thursday night we will send up our balloon with Hannah Glaum in it. The pilot sails over the Hudson and up Broadway."

Mr. Ludlam's eyes shone through his spectacles.

"We give the papers enough time to run off special editions. 'Stratosphere Over Broadway!' 'Plotkin's Balloon Coming Down in Times Square!' Then a half-hour before curtain time, our balloon settles right over Longacre Square. We'll have a band. Stooges will throw confetti out of hotel windows. Times Square will be packed with people from curb to curb. The balloon lands. The band strikes up. And out of the gondola comes Hannah Glaum, the Angel Child!"

Mr. Ludlam's glasses were suddenly wet. "My boy," he said, his voice trembling, "you are a genius!"

Bingham waited for the laurel wreath to be placed upon his brow.

"I'm going to present you with the thing I prize most," Mr. Ludlam said. "I'm giving you the most precious, the most beautiful thing in all the world: Hannah Glaum!"

The weight of Bingham's genius bowed him down. "But Mr. Ludlam," he protested, "it's sure swell of you—but I can't take the responsibility."

"I wouldn't trust her with anyone but you, Bing, my boy. Right now you will go to the Crown Hotel and take her out. You can go anywhere with her. But don't let her get out of your sight for a second or she'll run off and marry somebody."

"But what if she wants to marry me?"

"Well, so you'll be married to the world's most beautiful actress. Imagine, thousands of men will see her on the screen and fall in love with her. But she will be only yours."

"Yeah; if I lock her in a vault and throw away the key. No, Mr. Ludlam, I can't do it. And besides, I've got a date for dinner tonight."

"So how will it be," Mr. Ludlam pointed out, "if when Angel Child opens you find out that Hannah Glaum has just married a sailor on a round-the-world cruise? What will you do with your little balloon then? Stick a pin in it maybe, eh?"

"Oh, all right. I'll be her bodyguard till I get her in that balloon. But if she starts anything with me I'll have the pilot throw her overboard without a parachute, so help me!"

BING'S guests at dinner on the Crown Hotel Roof that night were Wanda Mallory and Hannah Glaum. Bing didn't want to get rid of Wanda and he couldn't get rid of Hannah.

"Is he not mos' beautiful?" Hannah said, smiling too sweetly at Wanda.

Wanda stared at Bingham with a critical frown. "His nose is much too big," she said. "Don't you think so?"

"Oh, no. It is a mos' wonderful nose." She leaned toward him and purred in his ear. "If you do not be nice, my lover, I shall not ride in that terrible big balloon for you."

Like a circus clown entering the ring, Bingham lifted his lips in a wide, fixed smile.

"Sweet child," he said, patting her hand.

He winked at Wanda but she returned his glance with scorn.

"What is the matter wiz my great big man?" Hannah Glaum said, squeezing Bingham's arm. "Is he hongry for the mos' perfect kiss?"

"This is too perfect!" Wanda snapped. "I am going!" She caught her wrap and dragging it over the floor in her haste, strode for the door.

"Wanda darling!" Bingham cried. He started after her but Hannah Glaum pushed him violently aside as, suddenly jumping up, she ran after a waiter who was headed toward the kitchen.

"Pierre!" she cried.

As Wanda raced in one direction and Hannah Glaum scurried in the other, Bing hesitated. He looked anxiously at the actress and then determinedly sprinted after Wanda.

ON THURSDAY Professor Plotkin went up to the stratosphere on schedule and Hannah Glaum, torn from the arms of Pierre the waiter, was spirited to Jersey in an armored truck and safely deposited in the gondola of Bingham's balloon.

An hour before Angel Child was scheduled to be presented by Marvelous Pictures to a tremulously waiting world, Wanda and Bingham were ensconced in Hannah Glaum's suite in the Crown Hotel. Bingham had tipped off the newspapers to be on the watch for the stratospheric balloon over New York and powerful searchlights on the roofs of the hotels were already playing across the skies hunting for their quarry. Stooges tossed paper streamers over Broadway to pique the curiosity of the people on the street. There was a strange breathlessness in the air and the strolling populace sensed it and waited, the crowds thickening as the clock on the Paramount Building spaced off the minutes to theatre time.

Wanda peered at the heavens through a telescope while Bing swept field glasses up and down Broadway. On the platform which had been erected above Longacre Square for the balloon's landing, he picked out Mr. Ludlam in formal tails, with other officials of Marvelous Pictures.

A sudden low murmur swept over the crowd as the beam of a searchlight caught a balloon hovering high over the Square. Other light beams converged upon the bright silver bubble as it swung over Broadway negotiating for its precarious landing.

The high-pitched cry of a corps of newsboys punctured the mounting murmur of the throngs. The running electric news flash on the Times Building ran amuck and raced around in a jumble of undecipherable hieroglyphics. The balloon slowly settled down in the canyon of steel and stone, missing destruction only through the momentary kindness of fate and the mob burst into a roar of applause.

As the balloon landed daylight flares flashed; press photographers and newsreel men operated their cameras; the band blared. A port-hole in the side of the shining sphere lifted—and out climbed Professor Plotkin!

THE SMILING, grey-bearded professor stepped down to the platform and lights suddenly blazed over a theatre announcing: "Goodman Productions Presents The Man From Mars!"

"Bing!" Wanda cried, pulling at his sleeve. "Isn't it wonderful?"

But there was no answer from Bingham. Turning, Wanda found him slumped back in his chair staring fixedly at the Times Building news flash which picked out a message in running points of light. Oblivious to the fact that its words of fire were scarring Bing's soul, it gayly danced off a headline: "Hannah Glaum Elopes With Balloonist!"

"Five thousand dollars!" Bing muttered. "A half a million pennies. One, two, three, four—"

Wanda dropped to the arm of Bing's chair and looked down at him with a soft light in her eyes. "Perhaps," she said, "I have punished you enough for letting that awful actress make love to you."

"Five, six, seven, eight—"

"We've made ten thousand, Bing!"

"What!"

"We'll get it from the Goodman people tomorrow."

Bing grasped Wanda's shoulders firmly and pulled her down to his lap.

"The whole truth and nothing but!" he commanded.

"Yes, Bing," Wanda said. "You see, I knew how much this balloon idea meant to you and I was terribly afraid that something might go wrong. So I induced Professor Plotkin to land here for Goodman Productions and sold them the idea for ten thousand dollars. That way no matter what happened you would win. I planned to tell you the other night at dinner but when you brought that impossible Hannah Glaum along—"

"I hate her!" Bing said emphatically.

Wanda's eyes glowed for no reason that Bing could fathom.

"And as it was your idea, Bing," she continued, "half the money is yours."

"I wouldn't touch it!"

"In fact, Bing, you are really responsible for the whole thing."

"Not on your life!"

"So you can have all of the money, Bing, if you'll mub—mub—"

Wanda struggled to finish the thought but Bing suddenly squeezed her so tightly that she couldn't. Which was perhaps just as well for he was on the point of asking her anyway.

New Bankruptcy Law Is Puzzler

Few Able To Understand Meaning Of Section 77B Of New Law

SPONSOR GIVES INTERPRETATION

Central Press Washington Bureau 1900 S street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—A reading of the new bankruptcy law, which is being passed by Congress, suggests an interpretation of Section 77B of the law, remarking that he does not believe there are many legal lights in his home city who understand it at all thoroughly.

Be it said in answer, if there are any who understand it, his city is exceptional.

For that matter, there are very few judges who understand it.

CAN YOU MAKE IT OUT?

Let me quote the initial sentence from 77B:

"Any corporation which could become a bankrupt under Section 4 of this act, and any railroad or other transportation corporation except a railroad corporation authorized to file a petition or answer under the provisions of Section 77B of this act, and except as hereinafter provided, may file an original petition, or, before adjudication in an involuntary proceeding, an answer, or in any proceeding pending in bankruptcy, whether filed before or after this section becomes effective, provided the present operations of such corporations do not exclude it hereunder, and whether or not the corporation has been adjudicated a bankrupt, a petition stating the requisite jurisdictional facts under this section; the nature of the business of the debtor; in brief description, the assets, liabilities, capital stock, and financial condition of the debtor; if a prior proceeding is pending, the name of the court in which it is pending and the nature of such proceeding; facts showing the need for relief under this section; and that the corporation is insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature and that it desires to effect a plan of reorganization."

There are 19 pages (large pages, in fine print) of just such sentences—equally clear, but not a bit more so.

ITS SPONSOR EXPLAINS

I thank my reader for the comment implied by his request for MY solution of this Chinese puzzle.

Nevertheless, I have had former Congressman Tom D. McKeown explain it to me. I could not assimilate much of his explanation, but he is an authority, anyway; he sponsored 77B through the house of representatives while, till one of its members (from Oklahoma; he now is practicing law in Chicago.)

The original bankruptcy act dates back to 1898, but 77B is only a little more than a year old, and is the most important part of the law at present.

LOOKS TOWARD REORGANIZATION

The purpose of the original law was to permit a bankrupt (individual or corporate), after being "sold out" for the creditors' benefit, to make a fresh start with a clean slate instead of being doomed to a perpetual state of bankruptcy, everlasting subject to levy on account of old indebtedness.

Under the original law, however, the debtor was "released" before being granted subsequent immunity.

Section 77B looks rather toward the possibilities of the reorganization of a large class of corporations. Individuals are not included and not all corporations; but utilities are included, for example, and incorporated commercial houses and manufacturing companies.

REORGANIZATION QUICKER

At a first reading of the section, one inclines to conclude that a bankruptcy under 77B substantially is the same thing as an old-fashioned receivership—except that the receiver or receivers are described as a trustee or trustees; or that the insolvent properties may remain, subject to court orders, under control of the bankrupt company's own officials.

Yet there is a subtle difference between an old-fashioned receivership and a 77B trusteeship.

A receiver's job is to get all he can, as fast as he can, for the creditors. The trustee's mission is to reorganize, if possible, alike in the interest of debtors and creditors.

A small creditor, under a receivership, can block a reorganization plan.

Under 77B, a majority of the miscellaneous creditors and common stockholders of a company plus two-thirds of the preferred stockholders and first and second bondholders, subject to the court's approval, can force reorganization.

And, reorganization having been agreed on, a fresh start is made, just as followed an old-time bankruptcy.

LEGAL CHARGES DENOUNCED

True, complaints are heard that lawyers' huge charges in 77B reorganization cases threaten to render the law ineffective.

Federal District Judge John D. Martin of Memphis recently disallowed heavy legal fees demanded in connection with reorganization of the Memphis Street Railway company. Federal Judge Alfred C. Cox of New York has ordered a re-estimation of fees in connection with the case of the Paramount-Public corporation. United States Supreme Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo has denounced exorbitant insolvency administrative costs as "a crying evil."

Section 77B, in short, isn't light summer reading.

For all that, it has a sort of interest, as illustrative of the kind of laws congress enacts—and then can't explain, when asked to do so.

Carlisle Woman Champion Milker

(International News Service)
CARLISLE, Pa., Aug. 10.—It's nearly half a gallon a minute that Mrs. Blanche Ebener of Carlisle can milk.

And that is enough for a new record in the milking championship, feature of the Cumberland county cattle show. It was enough, also, to enable Mrs. Ebener to best two former champions in winning the 1935 renewal of the event.

Figured in pounds, Mrs. Ebener milked 144 pounds of milk in two minutes. She defeated a large list of entries, including Miss Ruth Ott of Carlisle, the defending champion; Mrs. J. Paul Shugart, Churchover, the 1933 winner, and several young farm girls.

AROUND CITY HALL

Police chronology for 24 hours ending at 3:30 p. m. August 9, three arrests on charges as follows: Drunkenness 1, drunkenness and disorderly conduct 1 and suspicion 1.

During the hearing between west side residents and city council yesterday, relative to a playground at or near McCleary avenue, it was brought out that the present administration will go along with the residents and utilize what equipment the city has stored away. However, the city will not have anything to do with establishing a bathing beach in the Shenango for fear a drowning may occur. None has occurred there but some years ago a youth was drowned in the pool in Neshannock creek and the city was sued and the parents of the victim were awarded damages. Among the playground arguments advanced by the proponents was that the high cost of youthful delinquency was chargeable to failure of officials throughout the United States to afford recreational facilities for youth. In connection with this it might be mentioned that a mighty nice municipal clubhouse might now have been in use in Dean park had the city bid high enough for the Shenango Valley hospital property.

High cost of renewing liens has City Solicitor Robert White worried and he recommended to council yesterday that the city take over the land when persons refuse to renew the liens or make payments thereon, providing they are very old. He pointed out that one lien is 15 years old and while the person in whose name it is assessed has renewed the lien the owner has refused to pay off any of the sewer assessment for which the lien was filed. He called attention to another lien for paving which is 23 years old and the claimants have no means to keep the liens alive or make payment thereon. He said such things as this cost the city considerable money and he recommended that the properties be sold. Council agreed with and adopted a recommendation of Councilman Davies that White proceed to sell such properties.

As yet council has not appointed delegates to the coming annual convention of the League of Third Class Cities. It will be held August 22-23 at Williamsport.

A city official said yesterday he believes the county commissioners should delegate Thomas Edmunds to personally register the 105 persons who must register again in the second ward of the first ward. He said this could be done much quicker than by having them appear again for registration.

Various games and music was enjoyed until a late hour, when Mrs. Miller assisted by her daughters, Dorothy and Myrtlemae, served a tempting lunch. School Board Hears Request Of Representatives On Friday Night

Asking that colored girls be given fair treatment in the selection of school teachers, Rev. T. A. Ponds and Thomas Farrow appeared before the New Castle school board Friday night. In explaining their mission Mr. Farrow said:

"There seems to be a condition existing in New Castle whereby colored girls who graduate as teachers cannot get positions in their home city. Pittsburgh, Aliquippa and York, Pa., employ colored teachers and we believe that in New Castle they should be considered fairly.

Perhaps the world's most astonishing revolution began in 1868 when Japan began recasting her middle age, feudal empire into a modern nation. Englishmen were brought in to create a navy and build railways and lighthouses; Frenchmen to recast the laws and train the army; Americans to organize education and the postal service, Germans to train medical men and organize local government.
